On September 18, 2007, Miguel Rivera-Laureano was arrested in San Juan, PR by members of the USMS Puerto Rico Fugitive Task Force (PRFTF), who acted on information developed and provided by SERFTF. The Georgia Board of Pardons & Parole (GBPP) wanted Rivera-Laureano, one of that agency's Most Wanted fugitives, for Parole Violation relating to an underlying charge of cocaine trafficking. On January 11, 2007, Rivera-Laureano phoned GBPP to state that he fled to Puerto Rico, and that he would not return. GBPP obtained a warrant for Rivera-Laureano's arrest and contacted SERFTF for assistance in locating and apprehending him. SERFTF investigators identified information on Rivera-Laureano's location in San Juan, and forwarded that lead to PRFTF personnel. PRFTF responded to the target location, observed Rivera-Laureano, and safely took him into custody. Rivera-Laureano remains in custody pending extradition to Georgia.
